

Pregnancy as a “Window of Opportunity” for Intervention: Obesity, Stress, and Perinatal Outcomes

Presented by Jeannette R. Ickovics, PhD

*Professor of Epidemiology, Public Health, and Psychology
Director of CARE (Community Alliance for Research & Engagement)
Deputy Director of the Center for Interdisciplinary Research on AIDS
Yale University*

Followed by a panel discussion featuring:

Barbara Abrams, DrPH, RD

Professor of Epidemiology, Maternal and Child Health, and Public Health Nutrition University of California, Berkeley School of Public Health

Nicole Bush, PhD

*Assistant Professor in the Departments of Psychiatry, Child & Adolescent Psychiatry,
Health Psychology, and the Center for Health and Community
University of California, San Francisco*

Ralph Catalano, PhD, MRP

*Professor, UC Berkeley School of Public Health
Co-Director of the RWJF Health and Society Scholar Program
University of California, San Francisco*

Thursday, December 5th

12pm - 1:30pm

Laurel Heights, Conference Room 474

Co-Sponsored by the Stress, Environment, and Weight (SEW) Center and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Health and Society Scholars Program.

For more information please visit <http://www.chc.ucsf.edu/COAST> or email coast@chc.ucsf.edu.